Reading Books to Children

What is 'Letters and Sounds'?

'Letters and Sounds' is a phonics resource published by the Department for Education and Skills in 2007. It aims to build children's speaking and listening skills in their own right, as well as to prepare children for learning to read by developing their phonic knowledge and skills. It sets out a detailed and systematic programme for teaching phonic skills for children starting by the age of five, with the aim of them becoming fluent readers by age seven.

Kinetic Letters

Why do we need a special programme?

- Learning to write is incredibly complex
- Unique combination of cognitive and physical skills
 - Writing can be physically uncomfortable
 - Can become something they dread having to do
- Affects academic success, self-esteem and attitudes to school.

The Kinetic Letters Solution

- Works because it addresses both the cognitive and physical demands of learning to write.
- Builds strength through specific activities and working positions at the same time as developing their brains through multi-sensory learning experiences.
- Skills are developed so that handwriting becomes automatic.
 - So the brain gets to focus on being creative!

So how does it work?

- Letters are learnt as movement not just visual shapes
 - Writing is made easier using a pen and whiteboard
- Lying on the floor to write enables the hand to be held in the correct position
 - Brave Monkey and Scared Monkey help us!

1. Learning the letter sounds

3. Identifying sounds in words
4. Blending the sounds together

Letter Sounds

Digraphs

(two letters making one sound)

Pencil Hold

- Tripod grip
- 'Pinch' the pencil.

Tricky words are those words which cannot be sounded out using Phonics. The only way these words can be read and spelt correctly is by learning them and having plenty of practise.

This includes words such as:

the no go to.
